Happy New Year! At the end of December, as cold and snow are blanketing the north east of the U.S., I'm thrilled to be writing from India, where the weather is much more pleasant. Now, I'm about halfway through my five-week road trip in Asia. After India and before returning to Singapore, I will stop in Vietnam, for my very first visit. All of this promises good photos that I'll share soon.

In terms of new podcasts on The Wells Point, I posted pieces titled: "The 'Pogo,' a very useful and very portable printer" and "An introduction to critiquing photographs" in December. Additionally, I wrote blog entries covering topics as varied as:

- At the intersection of the art and craft of photography
- Singaporeans and creativity
- Watching as artists embrace and transform a new technology
- A new look at complaining about the 'good old days'

As we start the new year, I'm entering a number of competitions, including the World Press Photo contest and the Best of Photojournalism competition. Early next year I'm planning to submit work from my project photographing inside newly foreclosed homes, called "Foreclosed Dreams" for the Santa Fe Center's competitions. Speaking of competitions, I'm also thrilled to report that "Foreclosed Dreams," won second place in the People's Choice Award from SocialDocumentary.net. You can see the winning work at http://socialdocumentary.net/exhibit/David_Wells/561

Here are a couple images from that project:

Another article exploring the use of New Media and Multi Media by photographers, including me, was recently posted. You can read the entire piece starting at: http://www.pdnonline.com/pdn/cp/olympus/technology/article_display.jsp?vnu_content_id=1004054501

A nice interview/profile piece about me was also posted at: <http://www.rmsp.com/newsletter/viewnewsletter.aspx?id=75#instructor>

I hope you enjoyed my latest monthly newsletter. I welcome your feedback. If you know people who would be interested in getting these, please encourage them to sign up at <http://thewellspoint.com/wp-login.php?action=register>

Best wishes for the New Year!
