May is here and with it, my motorcycle and I have emerged from our winter hibernation. I'm taking short rides around Rhode Island and it's interesting to see what's changed over the winter.

My April blog entries included:

- How do you critique photographs?
- Critics and controversy
- Surviving "Hell Week" in fine-art photography
- Out of the eyes of babes
- The end of the photography world as we know it

You can also view my two newest podcasts. "The inspiration for an image," takes you from the inception of an idea for a photograph, through how I explore it – until the final image has just the feeling I want it to have. The other, "Yosemite, spring" takes you to Yosemite National Park in California, one of the first wilderness parks in the United States, which is best known for its waterfalls. Photos from my project on foreclosures as well as from my March trips to California and New York City are interspersed throughout this newsletter.

I'm continuing to photograph for my project on foreclosures. You can see my work from that project at: http://www.davidhwells.com/docuForeclosures/index.html#_self If you know anyone who can help me get into foreclosed houses, after the foreclosure, but before they are cleaned up and put back on the market, please let me know. I am trying to photograph in as many states as possible to illustrate the nationwide nature of the crisis.

Although it seems early, I'm planning out the workshops that I'll be teaching in the winter of 2010-2011. In December, I'll be teaching a class in Vietnam through Objectifs workshop <http://www.objectifs.com.sg/photo.htm> Details and dates will be posted as soon as I fix those, on my workshops page at: <http://www.davidhwells.com/workshops/index.html>. That is the best place to check back to regularly to see where I am teaching workshops.

I'm looking forward to upcoming presentations in Pennsylvania, New York and Boston. If you're in Allentown, PA., Wednesday, June 2nd think about joining me for a presentation that I am part of from 6:30 – 8:30. Read more at: <http://www.danscamera.com/course-catalog/#LITV> I am doing a presentation of my work on light and shadow on Long Island, NY, Thursday, June 3rd. Read more at:

<http://www.berger-bros.com/page/BBCVD/PROD/DavidHWells> My class, Funding Your Photographic Projects will be given at Calumet Photo, in Cambridge, MA on June 5th. Read more about that at: quest.cvent.com/EVENTS/Info/Summary.aspx

It was nice to be home in April. Especially since I'll be traveling to Pittsburgh, California and New York City in May. Stay tuned... Hope you enjoyed my latest monthly newsletter. I welcome your feedback. If you know people who would be interested in getting these, please encourage them to sign up at <http://thewellspoint.com/wp-login.php?action=register>
