November started with a lot of nice sunny weather. By the end of the month, we were briefly in a drought here in Rhode Island. Finally, the rain came late in the month, and things returned to normal, including the arrival of the real cold when the month ended. We ended the month with a great family weekend for the Thanksgiving holiday.

During November, I worked on film projects. I was pleased to be notified that my short experimental film, Surfacing, was selected for the Festival De Cine y Naturaleza Valle De La Fuenfría in Madrid, Spain. By November's end, I was dreaming of the warm weather I would find in South India during my upcoming photo workshop next February. As usual, I walked twice a day and photographed as I walked. A few images from those walks are interspersed throughout this newsletter.

POINTS OF PRIDE:

The other images you see are by a longtime friend and former student who recently had a book published: Loli Kantor: Call Me Lola

As Loli Kantor writes:

Call Me Lola is an autobiographical exploration of the role of photography in shaping memory, identity, and imagination. It includes self-portraits, archival family portraits, and documents, as well as my own annotations on photographs that I made of ephemera, all interwoven with my photographs of present-day places and geographies related to my own family history in Poland, Germany, Ukraine, France, and Israel.

Please take a look at the book and the work!

WORKSHOP NEWS:

With the cold weather here, I am looking forward to the warm weather, welcoming people, and fascinating culture of my South India photography workshop in February 2025. If you have ever considered traveling to South India, I hope you will consider joining me early next year

I hope you enjoyed my updates I welcome your feedback. If you know anyone interested in getting these updates, please encourage them to sign up for this newsletter.
